

Abstract

In a high voltage ESD protection solution, a plurality of DIACs are connected together to define a cascaded structure with isolation regions provided to prevent n-well and p-well punch through. An p-ring surrounds the DIACs and provides a ground for the substrate in which the DIACs are formed.

5